

What in the World?!

Materials Needed:

- bowl
- What in the World?! cards (included)
- Class set of small dry erase boards
- Class set of dry erase markers and erasers

Directions:

1. Before class, cut out the cards below, fold them in half, and place in a bowl at the front of the room.
2. During class, hand out a dry erase board, marker, and eraser to each student.
3. Call up four students at a time to come to the front of the room with their dry erase boards and markers.
4. Have the students at the front tell the class their names. The students in their seats write each name on their dry erase boards.
5. Draw a question and read it to the class.
6. The four students at the front write their answers without showing the class. Their answers can be as serious or silly as they please (as long as it is school appropriate).
7. The four students should hand their boards to you. Mix up the answers and read them aloud to the class.
8. The students in their seats try to guess who said what. On their dry erase boards, they should match each answer with one of the four students' names.
9. Have students hold up their boards to peek at their guesses. Allow students to comment or discuss their choices.
10. Reveal the correct answers.
11. Students should give themselves one point for each correct guess they made. They should keep track of their scores in the corner of their dry erase boards.
12. Call up four new students. Continue playing until each student has been up to the front of the room to introduce him/herself and answer a question.
13. Whoever has the most points at the end of the game wins!
